Echols defends efforts on bridge

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols says he meant to watch the 10 p.m. report on the McKinley Bridge that aired Tuesday on KSDT Channel 5.

"I messed around and fell asleep, though, and missed it," Echols said. "But I've heard about it from other people and it sounds like it was pretty much what I expected."

At the City Council meeting earlier in the evening, Echols said he figured the report would slam the bridge, which is owned by the city.

"I have never defended the bumpy ride and won't now," Echols said. "That bridge is 80 years old (opened in 1910) and it doesn't look pretty.

"But looks have never been my priority. My priority is to keep it from falling in the (Mississippi) river."

Echols said he doesn't mind reports that say the bridge needs repairs — "anyone can see that; you don't need to be an expert" — but said it bothers him that the reports usually act like the city isn't doing anything to maintain the bridge.

"You and I know that just ain't so," Echols said. "You ain't so." Echols said, "I've heard of bridge repair and improvement bills, $30,000 here and $40,000 there month after month."

Echols said the bridge is in

Tyrone Echols

no worse shape structurally than any other older bridge.

With the help of a $5.9 million grant, he said, the road surface and guardrails should be replaced this year.

"But let TV take their shots. They've got to find a crisis somewhere," he said.

Trash crackdown in Venice

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols told of having a "yard full of Pampers and my baby was 21 years old."

Alderman Michael Terrell told of a landlord who, after a verbal battle with Terrell, cleaned up a trash-filled yard and bought trash barrels for the tenants.

"But the very same day the lady had the little boy take out the trash. To them, that meant throwing it in the yard," Terrell said.

City Health Inspector John Henry Williams brought a dozen photographs of trash piles in the city to the City Council meeting Tuesday, prompting a heated discussion of the problem.

"This is ridiculous," said Alderman Henry Fletcher after seeing the photographs. "If the people can't get barrels, they can at least get plastic bags. But when it's like this, we need to give them tickets just like for anything else."

Fletcher said that, when trash is just dumped in the alley, the city's trash collectors have to either shovel it up or pick it up by hand.

"This has gotten out of hand," Fletcher said. "We need to do something."

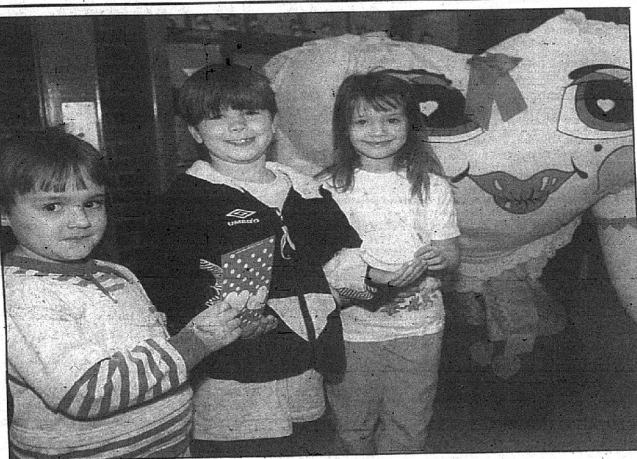

Echols said the city has "all kinds of nuisance ordinances" that could be applied to the offenders and said that many of the aldermen should consider putting together a notice listing the city's requirements and penalties for disregarding them.

Terrell asked whether the tenant or the landlord would be held responsible.

"I say the tenant," Fletcher said. "The tenant is the one who is there, the one who is doing it and I say it's got to stop. We're going to get rats and everything else."

Williams, an alderman himself until his resignation in December, watched the discussion in the council chamber.

Area dodges ice storm

Schools close for one day, but not next

An ice-and-snow storm gave the area the cold shoulder Wednesday, sliding out of harm's way, much to the delight of rush-hour drivers.

But just plain cold will follow.

"The freezing rain and sleet veered away from St. Louis and spread a lot of ice do India barrels," said Bill Bryd of the National Weather Service.

Thundershowers from the south and cold Canadian air that collided over Missouri stirred a mixture of freezing rain and sleet in this area earlier.

Crews spread tons of salt to clear main streets Tuesday and Wednesday.

All three local public school districts called off school on Tuesday, but resume normal operations Wednesday.

Cold temperatures — with the mercury hovering around 20 and snow flurries hit the area Wednesday. But warmer air may move in during the weekend, Bryant said.

"The temperature will climb to the upper 30s on Saturday and Sunday," he said.

State and municipal street crews hit the roads early Tuesday, spreading tons of salt on bridges and overpasses as forecasters called for wet winter gloom.

At least one local accident was blamed on the icy weather — a Texaco, Ill., woman was

Tavern on trial

Teen suspect served?

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

The bartender on duty at Lenny's Tavern Jan. 5 testified Wednesday that accused murderer David W. Dawson was present at the bar along with John Heuer and two others that night, but that Dawson was refused service because of his age.

The bartender, John Ryan, testified at a hearing called by Mayor Ron Selph on charges that the tavern sold beer to Dawson, 18, on Jan. 5 against state law, and allowed Dawson to remain in the bar in the absence of Dawson's parent or legal guardian, in violation of city ordinance.

Dawson is in the Madison County jail awaiting trial on a first-degree murder charge in connection with the stabbing death of Heuer on the night in question.

Dawson is alleged to have stabbed Heuer, 24, of the 2200 block of Illinois Avenue, once in the left temple at about 2:15 a.m. Jan. 5 at a home in the 2800 block of West 22nd Street.

While witnesses later told police that Dawson had been drinking beer from a glass at the tavern on the night in question, none of those witnesses showed up to testify at the administrative hearing Wednesday.

Under questioning by Assistant City Attorney Brian Kozzen, Ryan said that Dawson, Heuer and Mary Braden entered the bar, located at 2001 Illinois Ave., together at about 12:30 a.m. Jan. 5.

City may join effort on cable

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Granite City is considering participation in a consortium of communities seeking professional help in attempts to regulate and negotiate basic cable television service rates.

Under the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992, municipalities are given the power to regulate basic tier rates, which had been regulated in the past by the Federal Communications Commission.

If municipalities decline to regulate the rates, basic tier rates would be at the sole discretion of the cable companies.

Said David Williams, program director of Granite City Community Access Channel 6:

"The basic tier includes channels that can be received via airwaves plus the local community access channel."

Expanded tiers will continue to be regulated by the FCC.

In order to regulate, municipalities must first be certified by the FCC.

Granite City, whose 15-year franchise agreement with Crown Cable and the firm's predecessors expires in April, has already received FCC certification to regulate basic tier rates.

But the city is also looking into participating in a proposed coalition of about 25 municipalities in the county. The coalition would share information and attempt to negotiate a single set of county-wide cable rates and standards, Williams said.

"Right now, we're looking at whether it will be in the best interest of the city to participate in the consortium," Williams said.

One key question to be answered is the amount each city would have to pay to jointly hire a consultant. Under the proposal, each city in the group would have to pay to jointly hire a consultant. Under the proposal, each city in the group would have to pay to jointly hire a consultant.

In Los Angeles, life is still far from normal

Editor's note: The following was written by former Granite City resident Edward Kovach and his wife, Lisa, after the January earthquake that hit the Los Angeles area. Both Kovachs are writers and Edward is currently putting together a movie deal and "couldn't leave LA if I wanted."

"In the end, as in the beginning, there will be a vast silence broken by the sound of one person telling a story to another."

"We've been waiting for aftershocks to cease before we turn on our computers for an extended period of time, but they haven't."

"We're getting used to these 'baby quakes' playing surfers on the rolling carpet below and singing Beach Boys songs double time (and very high)."

Most people in business settings are amenable to wagers on the Richter Scale readings rather than show fear. Everyone agrees that these baby quakes keep our hearts beating fast, keep people living in the moment, showering with car keys in their teeth and sleeping with their shoes on or in their cars.

You might have read that many of our Mexican neighbors have set up makeshift tents on the grass along the curbs and piled their belongings in and on their cars rather than ride this out indoors.

I went to check them out to see how they were doing and for a minute I thought they might be refugees from hard-hit Northridge. But, no, they were just our neighbors on the next block (my Spanish is pretty bad). We can't help wondering if they know something we don't. 25,000 people perished in the Mexico City quake.

We keep feeling sorry the most for the children who are traumatized by the shaking and don't possess the normal adult capacity for denial.

Friends keep hoping we'll tell them that things are not as bad as the TV coverage. In our neighborhood, no. We've only seen a couple houses that have been inspected and, of those, only three were deemed dangerous.

The damage, if anything, has not yet been assessed.

Acquaintances of ours did find that, since their daughter slept much of the day after her initial trauma, and they had enough time to clean the house before she woke, she wasn't afraid of the aftershocks and rather enjoyed them. (Just keep them away from the TV.)

How has life changed? Besides traffic congestion, a run on U-Hauls and the frayed nerves from the sleepless nights, we're beset by more predictions, contradictions and contra-predictions than ever.

Everyone has a feeling, or knows an astrologer who predicted a quake successfully.

One neighbor's boyfriend said the friendly UFOs (unidentified flying objects) had withdrawn their protective rays from LA.

Another spoke of the possibility of the secret world government causing the calamity to practice crowd control and martial law.

On Friday, we saw an attorney who normally works 12 hours a day leave work after the first two morning aftershocks. His 13th-floor office was in a building built on rollers, but his

There are 8,254 Red Cross workers providing earthquake relief in California, but only one of them is from Granite City.

So said Granite City Red Cross worker Brad La Rose, who has been in Ventura County, Calif., since Jan. 27 — 10 days after the area was hit by an earthquake that measured a revised 6.7 on the Richter Scale.

"I've not had a day off yet," La Rose said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

"The aftershocks have continued since I've been here. Almost every day there was at least one reaching 3 points (on the Richter Scale) and once we had 4- and 3-point tremors all on the same day."

The last two days (Monday and Tuesday) were the first since the quake without tremors.

La Rose said geology reports provided to the Red Cross indicate that the mountains in the Ventura County area are now 12 to 15 feet higher than they were before the earthquake and the low valleys have risen by 15 to 18 inches.

An 'out-of-control' department

Child welfare agency is criticized in new state audit

The state's child welfare agency has failed to resolve more than half the problems cited in a critical audit of its operations, which represents a bureaucracy out of control, according to one legislator.

A new audit of the Department of Children and Family Services shows the agency "is saying the children and the taxpayers are damned," Rep. Jay Hoffman of Collinsville said.

The agency is run by a "bureaucracy in Springfield and Chicago that is out of control."

DCFS has failed to carry out 19 of 36 recommendations in an auditor general's report issued last year, according to a follow-up report released last Monday.

The second report was ordered by an Illinois House resolution, which was co-sponsored by Hoffman.

Last year's audit, released May 20, criticized the state agency for failure to keep track of critical records in child welfare cases and inadequate hiring methods.

DCFS blamed lack of adequate staff and time for not implementing several of the recommendations and the agency disagreed with other recommendations.

"It's like they're saying so what to the auditor general and the Legislature," Hoffman said. "To have not responded to 19 of 36 recommendations, there is no excuse for that."

In its response contained in last Monday's report, department officials say they plan to reduce some of the $2.7 million the agency is spending on a controversial consulting contract.

Last May's report said more staff members should be hired instead of continuing a contract with a consulting firm to help seek more federal funds.

Hoffman and others have charged the contract and others given by DCFS with competitive bids were payoffs to contractors with political connections to Gov. Jim Edgar's administration.

DCFS Deputy Director Thomas Swick said Monday that the agency planned to hire seven employees at an average salary of about $24,000 per year to do some of the work now done by the consultants. That would reduce the contract by about $600,000 per year.

However, Swick said the consultant, Management Systems and Services Inc., still has special expertise in capturing federal reimbursement funds and DCFS has no plans to terminate the contract.

The auditor general's report said the $2.7 million paid in one year for the work of 22 full-time contractual employees hired by the consultant amounted to an average annual rate of $127,000 per worker.

The audit said the department could have hired up to 60 regular state employees providing a similar service at an annual rate of $47,000 each, including fringe benefits. Swick said the analysis failed to include computer time and other costs and the profit margin of the consultant.

Among other problems the department failed to correct and DCFS acknowledged have not been corrected are:

- Documents required to be in child welfare files are frequently missing. Auditors said their review of 66 files revealed that 34 percent of the 330 critical documents were missing.

- The department has failed to perform formal criminal background investigations before placing children in homes, day-care centers and with child welfare agencies.

- DCFS has failed to follow a legal requirement to conduct random surveys of parents and guardians in licensing child-care facilities.

- DCFS failed in 2 percent of its cases to meet the legal requirement of starting abuse and neglect investigations within 24 hours.

- The agency does not adequately monitor the expiration of child-care facility licenses. Some of them expired 10 years ago with no action taken. As of last month, more than 5,800 expired licenses had not been checked.

- DCFS continues to fail to properly document foster care files to make sure that federal regulations have been followed and reimbursement can be obtained.

Marijuana discovered

Police looking for a man wanted for questioning in another case reported finding the man and an unexpected prize Feb. 3 — more than a pound of marijuana.

Mark E. Cridler, 28, of the 2400 block of East 23rd Street, was arrested at 5:45 p.m. and charged with unlawful possession of cannabis with intent to deliver.

Bond on the felony warrant was $100,000.

Police reported finding Cridler in an apartment in the 2400 block of East 23rd Street after they had been told in roll call at 3 p.m. that he was wanted for questioning. Officers were told to be on the lookout for his silver Pontiac, according to a police report.

Police entered the apartment and asked Cridler if anyone else was in the apartment. Cridler said that he was alone and invited officers to search the apartment if they wished, the police report states.

Officers then found more than 500 grams of marijuana in various locations throughout the apartment, the report states.

Officers also reported finding a loaded .38-caliber handgun underneath a mattress and Cridler was charged with possession

St. Louisian is charged

Joan E. Bloemer, 37, of St. Louis, was arrested at 12:34 a.m. Feb. 7 for driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported finding a blue 1994 Chevrolet Baretta parked at Jack-in-the-Box, 3330 Nameeki Road, with the engine running and Bloemer asleep behind the steering wheel.

Bloemer refused to take any sobriety tests and was charged.

Asleep at the wheel

Roy E. Asbury, 55, of Minco, Okla., was arrested at 11:38 p.m. Feb. 4 for driving under the influence of alcohol, assault and driving while his license was suspended.

An officer reported finding Asbury asleep behind the steering wheel of a parked red 1981 Buick Electra with the engine running. The car was blocking the exit at Rally's, 2222 Madison Ave.

An officer awakened Asbury and asked him to step out of the car, according to a police report.

Asbury refused to leave the car and allegedly clenched his fists, threatening to harm the officer, the report states.

Asbury was unable to complete any field sobriety tests and was charged.

hospitalized after the pickup truck she was riding in hit a slick spot on the Interstate 55/70 overpass over Illinois 157 at Collinsville, spinning out of control and into the path of a tractor trailer, which slammed into it.

The wreck temporarily closed the westbound lanes of I-55/70 and backed up traffic on the interstate.

According to an Illinois State Police report, the pickup truck, driven by 44-year-old Ralph Bernard, was westbound on I-55/70 when it lost control on the overpass and spun out, and was struck by a westbound semi driven by 30-year-old Stephen Haggard of Marble Hill, Mo.

Bernard's wife, Barbara, was thrown out the driver's window of the pickup when the tractor-trailer slammed into it.

The pickup spun out on the ice going across the bridge," said Haggard, who was driving the semi. "He started going 30-40 in the middle of the road and I hit him. I couldn't stop."

Barbara, 45, was listed in fair condition at Anderson Hospital on Wednesday, according to a hospital spokesman. Her husband was reportedly treated at the hospital and released, and was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions.

Set Roger Hayes of the Illinois State Police said roads were slick Tuesday night but no serious accidents were reported. Granite City police reported a similar situation.

"We've had some minor fender benders, but that's about it," Hayes said.

At 4 p.m. Tuesday, the National Weather Service downgraded its ice-storm warning to a winter weather advisory of scattered freezing rain.

Road crews breathed a collective sigh of relief. "With snow, it accumulates and you can plow it from the road and treat behind it," said Joe Crowe of the Illinois Department of Transportation. "Freezing rain hits the ground and freezes. All you can do is treat it and hope it goes away."

"In snow, you can get traction and drive as long as you're sensible. With ice, it's pretty uncontrollable and motorists can't see it at night," he said.

The Madison County Court-house closed at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday but reopened Wednesday.

Chief Judge Edward Ferguson, who closed the courthouse, also ordered cases set for Tuesday automatically continued if someone was unable to show because of the weather. And, he ordered any cases filed today to be considered as being filed Tuesday.

Arrested on drug charges

A 27-year-old Pontoon Beach man was arrested Monday on federal drug and weapons charges.

Charles T. Howland Jr., of the Cottonwood Mobile Home Park in Pontoon Beach, was arrested in the 2500 block of Washington Avenue in Granite City at 10:44 a.m. on a Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois warrant.

The warrant asks Howland to answer to charges of conspiring to distribute marijuana, attempting to distribute marijuana, unlawful possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute it, unlawful use of a firearm during and in relation to a drug trafficking offense, and unlawful use of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Howland was arrested by a Granite City police officer and turned over to the FBI. He is being held without bail pending a detention hearing next week.

An investigation into the matter was conducted by MEGSI and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Deputies to get new patrol cars

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

Patrol officers from the St. Clair County Sheriff's Deputy will be sitting pretty in new 1994 models approved for purchase by the St. Clair County Board last month.

Nine patrol cars and one administrative vehicle will be added to the department fleet, and replaced with 100,000 miles on them, said Capt. James Lay.

The nine 1994 Caprice Classics, which will be assigned to patrol, will be purchased from Schmitt Chevrolet in Belleville at a cost of $110,000 after the trade-ins.

The 1994 Ford Crown Victoria for department administration will be purchased at $14,734 from Feurer Motor Co. in New Athens.

"Vehicles in the department are driven over one million miles a year so we usually rotate about a third of the cars every year or so," Lay said.

New cars generally begin in the patrol division, where they are on the road 24 hours a day, he said. Once they get 50,000 miles or more, they often are transferred to the investigative division before they are finally retired.

"Patrol cars are used over and over again by every shift," Lay said.

News in review

"News in review" provides a summary of top stories from the area. The column is designed to assist out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday newspapers:

Police praised for halting gunman

Authorities expect a coroner's jury to find no wrongdoing on the part of three police officers in the shooting death of a Granite City man Friday night.

Gary Gene Smith, 38, was wounded fatally by police after he went on a random shooting spree in the busy Nameeki Village Shopping Center, wounding a security guard and a woman store customer. Granite City police said Smith was hit by at least five bullets fired by three city police officers. Smith had a criminal record that included arrests for burglary, weapon and drug law violations.

Madison drug, trespass arrests

The Madison Police Department made a sweep of the Garesche-Grenzer public housing projects Jan. 29, making eight arrests on 10 charges.

"No one got away," said new Police Chief Paul Bargiel. "It was a 'zero tolerance' situation. Everyone was arrested and everyone was taken to jail." The sweep involved blocking Garesche-Grenzer exits and arresting non-residents who were found outdoors at night. The arrests included two charges for possession of cocaine, two for possession of cannabis, five trespassing charges and one arrest on an outstanding warrant.

"This will not be the last sweep," Bargiel said. "There will be many more and not just in the housing projects."

City lacks personnel manager

Four or five visitors walked outside Mayor Ron Selph's office late one day last month as Selph rolled his eyes, unbuttoned the top of his shirt and took yet another telephone call.

The call was to inform the mayor that workers in one of the city's operating departments had filed another in a long series of grievances against the city. This time, sanitation department employees objected to a private firm taking down city Christmas decorations that had hung from utility poles. The sanitation department doesn't have the equipment to do it," Selph said.

It was an example of the type of work Selph has been doing since taking over the office of mayor nine months ago.

"I really wish to take a proactive approach to some of the things the city is facing," Selph said. "But sometimes it seems like all we have time to do is react, react, react."

Part of the problem, according to the Melville Strategic Management Review, is that the city's governance structure, with four elected department heads and no central human resources manager, is obsolete.

Pontoon clerk office investigated

A Madison County Grand Jury investigating former Pontoon Beach Village Clerk Mary Warren has asked for more information.

A number of apparent irregularities discovered after Warren left office last summer prompted the village to request a study by its police in October. The results were later turned over to the State's Attorney's Office.

Warren, scheduled to testify before the grand jury last week, presented a doctor's excuse and did not appear. First elected in 1976, she resigned last year, citing ill health.

County may extend present jail tax

The Madison County Board may extend the expiration of jail tax in order to issue bonds to pay for expansion of the overcrowded County Jail and for jail roof replacement.

The project is expected to cost between $2 million and $3.3 million. The 1.74-cent jail tax rate was scheduled to drop off tax bills this year when the $5 million bond issue used to build the jail is paid off.

Area Klan organizer won't attend rally

SPRINGFIELD — The national Knights of the Ku Klux Klan plan a rally at the Statehouse in Springfield Feb. 12, but a local Klan organizer won't take part.

"I'll never go to the Capitol again," said Basil Stizes Sr., grand titan and organizer of the Illinois Klan. "As a citizen of Illinois and a taxpayer, I don't want to see the people of Illinois any more money."

Stizes helped put together the Klan's Jan. 30 rally in Springfield. Taxpayers footed a bill of $84,500 for security then.

But Stizes said he doesn't want to put an additional burden on fellow taxpayers.

"The way to take our message across the state is to have a property, where it doesn't cost taxpayers any money," said Stizes. "The way to take our message across the state is to have a property, where it doesn't cost taxpayers any money," said Stizes.

Earlier Monday, Robb got a permit for a May 7 rally at the Madison County Administration Building in Edwardsville.

Black leaders in Alton and Edwardsville are encouraging people to ignore such events or protest with large numbers.

The Klan should be allowed to stage a rally, said leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Edwardsville and Alton.

County officials agreed the Klan should be allowed to hold a rally (on county property), regardless of who they represent, is required to file a written request, and Mr. Robb did so.

County Administrator Jim Monday said.

Robb, of Harrisonville, Ark.,

said the KKK will hold rallies in Edwardsville May 6 and in Decatur as well as Springfield May 7.

"We're attempting to bring a message of hope and deliverance to our people," he said. "We seek to promote love of our heritage, of our people and preserve a future for our white children."

Stizes opposed to violence and hatred.

When asked if the Cottage Hill Klan would be involved with the rally, Robb said Stizes' "status is under review with our office."

Stizes contended there is more than one difference of opinion between Robb and his organization. Robb plans to hold a press conference.

"Basically, we don't approve of these protests on county property," Stizes said.

Edwardsville Alderman Winston Brown, vice president of the city's NAACP chapter, said residents should not forget the Klan has the right of peaceful protest.

"I would not want that right taken from me," he said, adding that city's NAACP chapter should be in such a position as to be able to respond to letters to local newspapers.

Alton NAACP branch President James Gray said ignoring the rally would be the best approach. "I don't put any stock in what the Klan is doing," he said.

Bobby Collins, president of the 100 Black Men of Alton, agreed. "Just let them die in their own stupidity. We can't legitimize what they are doing by paying any attention to them," he said.

Venice needs 'front money' for flood-related sewer work

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

The 1993 "Flood of the Century" is still plaguing Venice, but Mayor Tyrone Echols said he hopes for help soon.

Echols told the City Council on Tuesday that he will meet this week with U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, regarding the flood damage to the city's sewers.

The problem, Echols said, is that the Federal Emergency Management Agency requires cities to make the repairs and then apply to FEMA for reimbursement of the cost.

"We don't have the money to put up front," Echols said. "We (Venice, Granite City and other local communities) want to see if Rep. Costello can help put pressure on FEMA to forward some money to use for these repairs."

Because of the extent of the damage caused by the flood, nobody has that kind of front money. Nobody."

Echols said he had received a telephone call from "one of the top reps at FEMA" and that the FEMA representative had "seemed very amicable to our problem, at least over the phone. But I think our best bet is to do it right and go through Costello."

Echols said FEMA had relented on its objection to using instant-form lining to make the repairs and "our engineers are itching to start with these repairs. The only holdup is the money."

In other business, Echols announced that the city, the Madison County Transit District and the Illinois Department of Transportation will be getting together this month to put the final signatures on a $8.9 million federal grant for renovation of the Venice-owned McKinley Bridge.

He said that the federal money is "doled out" at a rate of about 1/8th at a time and the bridge and other funding agencies have to make sure they have a workable agreement for seeing that the money will be available when the contractors working on the project want to get paid.

The Illinois Department of Transportation will serve as the contracting agency for the project, which involves resurfacing the Mississippi River bridge and replacing the guardrails.

Alderman John Ervin reported that the city is still waiting for the state to issue a permit for the city's proposed gasoline tank at the city garage, installing the tank would allow the city to purchase gasoline for its vehicles in bulk rather than continuing to purchase it at retail outlets.

The aldermen granted Ervin's request to seek bids from potential buyers for the city's road grader. Ervin said the grader is inoperable and at least one person had expressed interest in buying it.

Pontoon alters mobile-home law

By Amber Rogers
Correspondent

Continuing their village cleanup efforts, Pontoon Beach Village Board members agreed unanimously Tuesday night to a new ordinance strictly limiting the use of mobile homes within the village.

Like the old ordinance, mobile homes are still prohibited from use, storage or residential occupancy within the village limits, except for mobile home parks.

The board amended the ordinance to state that "the building inspector may approve the replacement of any existing mobile home, where it is determined by visual inspection that the replacement would enhance the neighborhood or where it is determined that the tract or parcel is not suitable for a permanent structure because of size or location."

Village President Glen Wilson said that the change is fair and necessary for the improvement of the village.

"We want to clean this place up," Wilson said.

The new ordinance also allows for the Zoning Board of Appeals to recommend variances for the occupancy of any mobile home if the parcel of land exceeds one acre.

The new ordinance does not prohibit the use of mobile homes or portable buildings as business offices if there is a special-use permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals, for a limited time.

In other business, the board is still waiting final approval from Illinois American Water Company to install water service on Route 162, down Lake Drive including Virginia Avenue, and down State Aid 35 to include the Holiday Mobile Home Park. Water company official Bob Jackson said a final hearing on the matter will be held March 1.

"Everything seems to be going pretty well. It is just a matter of giving them more information that this new area will support itself and will not be a detriment to our regular customers. So far, I have no indications of problems at this time," Jackson said.

Wilson is positive about the final hearing. "It will be a great help to this village to have water out there," Wilson said.

The board granted a business license to Cardinal Building Material Inc., a wholesale distribution company which Board Trustee Mike Macke said "sells wholesale to contractors, with a very small portion sold to dealers for resale."

Macke, who was absent from the meeting, sent a letter to the board in support of Cardinal.

"We feel that, (it) will be an asset to our village," wrote Macke, "and a substantial contributor to our sales tax revenue."

Bowles, Briggs support Netsch

Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles and Regional Superintendent of Schools Harry Briggs are backing state Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch in her bid for governor.

Netsch, who is up against three other Democrats in this month's primary election, was in Edwardsville Monday to line up political support and discuss her proposal for increasing school funding statewide.

"I have known Dawn personally for over 12 years, and I am proud to offer her my full support in her campaign for governor," said Bowles, who is waging a campaign of her own for the state Senate.

Bowles will retire from the clerk's office in December and is the sole Democrat seeking to replace retiring Sen. Sam Vadas-deo of Edwardsville, who is the sole Democrat who opposes the contract who is battling health problems.

Briggs also weighed in on Netsch's side and endorsed her school funding plan.

"She is the only candidate who

'I have known Dawn personally for over 12 years, and I am proud to offer her my full support in her campaign for governor.'

— Evelyn Bowles backs Dawn Netsch has offered an honest plan to voters," he said.

"All candidates like to claim that education is their No. 1 priority, but the difference with Dawn is that she offers a thoughtful and detailed plan to support her commitment to adequate school funding."

Bowles would like the personal income tax rate by 1.25 percent and the corporate rate by 2 percent and funnel the new revenue into schools and property tax relief.

Not one penny of this (revenue) would go to the bureaucracy in Springfield," said Netsch, who estimated her plan would generate $1 billion a year.

Netsch will face Cook County Board Chairman Dick Phelan, Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris and Pallos Park attorney James Gierach in the March 15 primary.

Phelan was endorsed by Madison County Democratic organization late last year, but Bowles' support could sway some votes to Netsch's side. Bowles has consistently been one of the top vote-getters in county elections.

THE LAW AND

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes landlords contact this office and indicate that their tenants have stopped paying rent. They wonder what procedure must be followed in order to evict a delinquent tenant. Many property owners inquire about whether they can take matters into their own hands in having the tenant removed by changing the locks or shutting off the utilities.

In one recent case, a man owned an apartment building, and one of the tenants was three months behind in rent. The landlord had made repeated demands for rent payments, but the tenant continually refused to pay, due to a lay-off at work. The owner in this case had an extra set of keys to the apartment, and he wanted to know if he could remove the tenant's furniture from the apartment.

In another situation, a man owned a rental house, and the lessee had not paid rent in four months. In this case, the property owner had the utilities listed in his own name. Because the tenant refused to move despite repeated demands, the landlord wanted to have the utilities shut off in the middle of winter. He asked whether such an action would be appropriate given the circumstances.

Illinois law provides that a property owner cannot take it upon himself to evict a tenant without obtaining a court order. If a landlord removes furniture, turns off the heat or changes the locks, this is known as constructive eviction. If a landlord does not go to court to have a delinquent tenant removed but rather takes matters into his own hands, he faces the possibility of a civil suit for wrongful eviction.

What procedures should a landlord follow when a tenant falls behind in the rent? The landlord in this situation would need to serve a notice on the tenant. If the tenant does not leave at the end of the notice period, the landlord will need to file an action in court known as a Forcible Entry and Detainer. Ultimately, the property owner will obtain a judgment for possession, which will require the tenant to move within a specified period of time. If the renter still does not vacate the property, the sheriff will come and forcibly remove the delinquent tenant. For a landlord to attempt to remove a tenant by his own methods without benefit of a court order is foolhardy since this could result in civil liability under Illinois law.

Tavern owner denies attempt to eavesdrop

A recording system in a popular Edwardsville bar never was intended or used for eavesdropping, according to the bar owner.

The equipment was purchased for security, not to eavesdrop on private conversations, Vicki Vanzo, owner of Vanzo's Taproom, 132 N. Main St., told The Telegraph Monday.

"People have misinterpreted what they've read in some of the newspapers," she said.

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine last week filed misdemeanor charges against the tavern; the company that supplied the equipment, Security Concepts Inc. of Marietta, Ga.; and the company that arranged its lease, Business Credit Leasing of Marshall, Minn.

Haine said such devices are illegal in Illinois and warned any other bars or restaurants that have such equipment to remove it or face prosecution.

Vanzo said there was only a single video camera, mounted in full view near a cash register, but it had a microphone that picked up conversations of employees or nearby patrons.

"I didn't realize it was illegal," she said. Vanzo said representatives of Security Concepts told her it was legal when they leased the equipment to her last year.

Vanzo was told by Madison County Sheriff's Department Lt. Conrad Baetz several months ago that the equipment was illegal.

"Immediately when I found out it was illegal, I turned it off," Vanzo said. "I didn't want to hassle with it."

Vanzo said she contacted the companies and told them she wanted the equipment removed, but they continued to bill her and didn't remove it until late December.

She said she received a summons Monday that indicates Business Credit Leasing is suing her for about $5,300. Representatives of the companies have consistently maintained the equipment is legal and had threatened to sue her, Vanzo said.

Vanzo said it was she who reported the situation to the State's Attorney's Office last week. Prosecutors have described the charges against the tavern as "friendly," but necessary to prosecute the companies.

"We weren't aware of any problem with the law in Illinois," said John Docken, an attorney for Business Credit Leasing. "We wouldn't knowingly violate any law."

Docken said he could not comment further because he had not seen the charges or reviewed Illinois law.

9 churches join to help feed needy

Maxine Green

Maxine Green covers the Granite City and Napa Valley ship area for the Press-Record Journal. She can be contacted at 931-5256.

Nine churches of the Madison County Baptist Association are now ministering to feed the hungry. The meals are served every Thursday from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church in Granite City.

The ministry includes a Beg A Club, directed by Kathy Affolter, which also meets at the church at 3:45 p.m. The Beg A Club will be divided into small age groups next week. Carolyn Whitehead will lead preschool-aged kids, Sandy Buford will lead the first and second grade students and Beth and Karen Purkale will lead the third through six grade students.

Edith Campbell will also begin a ministry to parents during this Beg A Club time. For more information, call 876-1707.

Feb. 24, beginning at 6:30 p.m., a "Strengthening Families, Growing Churches" Workshop will be held in the Third Baptist Church. The desired outcome is to equip ministers to integrate family ministry into existing church programs and assist leaders to select a family ministry project that will help families and lead to church growth.

George and Glenna Staggs have returned from a two-week vacation in Anaheim, Calif. They visited George's sister, Vida Kecherside, and Vida's daughter, Dena. They also visited San Diego, Palm Springs, Calif., and enjoyed many sight-seeing tours. They experienced the earthquake and are not looking forward to another one.

The Better Breather's February meeting will be held Feb. 15 rather than Feb. 8. It will be held in the Wiesman Room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center beginning at 1 p.m. The speaker will be Rita Zaruba, RN, from Home Health at SEMC. The topic will be "Home Health: Who Needs It?"

A music leadership banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 28 at Second Baptist church in Granite City for music directors, spouses, accompanist and children and preschool choir leaders. The speaker will be Allen Mashburn, IBSA Church Music Services.

Feb. 14, at 8:30 a.m., the Saints Alive group will have breakfast at Shoney's Restaurant to commemorate their 10th anniversary. Henry Hall, founder, will be the guest speaker.

The February meeting of the Ruth Class of Calvary Baptist Church held its meeting Tuesday with a luncheon at Jessica's Cottage, 2401 Jerden Ave.

The meeting opened with prayer by Pauline Weir. Prayer requests were made for Roy Mendenhall, Virginia Bueschel, Maureen Lewallen, Marie Cook, Roy Weister, Carolyn Ezell, Brooks Weir, Virginia Bridges, Nancy Dunlap, Christy Morris, Lucille Cahill and Martha Bivens. Eileen Badgett led in prayer for the sick.

The devotion was given by Dorothy Watkins on "God's Expanding Love." All present received a balloon to blow up demonstrating her talk.

The minutes of the January meeting were given by secretary, Ruth Dagon. Pat Wallis, treasurer, gave her report. These were both approved as read. Norma Ross reported buying bales of toilet tissue, paper towels and laundry soap with class money donated for the Crisis Closet. Chess chairman, Dorothy Watkins, reported sending three cards. Ten phone calls were made by the class. Games were led by Pauline Weir with prizes won by Ruth Dagon and Dorothy Watkins.

Food was enjoyed by all the members. The devotion for March 1 will be given by Bernice Boyer, games by Norma Ross and the hostess will be Shirley Pittman.

Those present were Lois Bivens, Pat Wallis, Maxine Hoover, Virginia Bueschel, Dorothy Watkins, Norma Ross, Eileen Badgett, Gladys Hutson, Bernice Boyer, Ruth Dagon and the teacher, Pauline Weir.

Many ways to express: 'Be my Valentine'

*I wonder, by my troth, what thou and I Did, till we lov'd. Were we not wean'd till then?
But suck'd on country pleasures, childishly?
Or snorted we in the heaven sleepers den?
T'was so; But this, all pleasures fancies be.
If ever any beauty I did see,
Which I desir'd, and got, t'was but a dreaume of thee.*

John Donne
"The Good-Morrow"

The 17th Century English poet John Donne has come to be recognized as a master celebrant of both secular and sacred love.

Donne was chastised in the 18th and 19th centuries by such critics as John Dryden, Alexander Pope and Dr. Samuel Johnson for his metaphysical imagery and for being "sensually frank."

But as a practical matter, Donne's words "t'was but a dreaume of thee" probably succeeded in their purpose — convincing the object of his fancy that she was his first "true" love regardless of his somewhat promiscuous and prolific past passions.

While 20th Century women will likely be thrilled to receive homemade Valentine cards of construction paper, crayon and Elmer's glue from their school-age children next Monday, fathers (or would-be fathers) face a decidedly more difficult challenge in pleasing the object of their affection and convincing her to "Be mine."

Keeping in mind that most 20th Century men probably lack the convincing sensitivity, wit, creativity and mastery of language that Donne possessed, we present "The Press-Record Valentine Gift Guide for the Romantically Impaired" (PREVGRIM).

If you didn't understand why your girlfriend failed to throw herself into your arms after you presented her with a new set of Ping Pong balls last year; if your wife didn't appreciate the ironing board wrapped in a big red bow; if your would-be love quit returning telephone calls after last year's treat of a Big Mac and fries, read on.

Most women interviewed at the Jan's Hallmark card shop in Crossroads Plaza shopping center — where a variety of gifts can be purchased at a reasonable price — told PREVGRIM that the thought that goes into a Valentine gift is at least as important as the gift itself.

Traditional Valentine gifts of a card, candy and flowers (preferably roses) can be enhanced by the method of their delivery.

A candle-lit dinner for two at a quiet restaurant (or better yet, a dinner prepared by the gift-giver) can set the mood and greatly improve the effectiveness of the average gift.

And because Valentine's is one of the "big three" card-giving days of the year, Jan's has quite a variety — five full aisles — of professionally-written cards to choose from, ranging in nature from the humorous to the deeply passionate.

But for the more adventurous card-giver, a would-be Donne may try his hand at personalizing a Valentine's card at Jan's.

A couple of original couplets can go a long way toward wooing the woman in one's life — especially if her name appears in the message and the words rhyme.

Or, if the written word isn't the giver's particular forte, Jan's carries a line of cards that will play a 10-second recorded audio message from the giver when the receiver opens it.

Other novelty gifts available at Jan's include stuffed animals; T-shirts and sweat shirts; candy (including chocolate-covered strawberries and sugar-free "chocolate") in traditional red, heart-shaped boxes; and the gift PREVGRIM suspects Donne would most appreciate, the red plastic handcuffs, bearing the words "prisoner of love."

For the man who is already married and looking for a practical gift for his wife, coffee mugs can be a better selection than a vacuum sweeper. PREVGRIM has learned.

One such mug bears these words of wisdom:

"The top three secrets for staying in love:
1) caring;
2) sharing;
3) keeping your mouth shut about each other's relatives."

For a unique gift wrap, Jan's offers "balloon wraps." Any item that will fit inside a hole eight-inches in diameter can be wrapped inside an inflated balloon.

Judy and Vinery, a floral/gift shop that opened at 1394 Nudringhaus Ave. in the downtown area last week, offer roses but told PREVGRIM that they recommend alternatives during the Valentine season, when wholesale prices soar from about 85 cents to as much as $1.85 per stem.

As an alternative, the Knapps have prepared large European fresh-flower blossom baskets containing an imported French doll and chocolates. The package is festively wrapped with balloons and sells for $65 — about the same price as a vase of a dozen long stems.

Violet and Vinery also offers a wide variety of vases, heart-shaped china and porcelain jewelry boxes, and imported Egyptian perfume bottles with 14-karat gold inlay.

Speaking of karats (or better yet carats), some women interviewed by PREVGRIM hinted that Valentine gift-givers who lack originality can more than make up for their shortcoming with large expenditures of cash.

These "Love Bandits" at Jan's Hallmark are cute and cuddly, ideal for Valentine's Day.

in the Bellemore Village shopping center has more carats and karats than even Bugs Bunny knows what to do with.

A tennis bracelet containing a total diamond weight of 4.30 carats would convince most women to be the giver's Valentine, and can be purchased from Hudson for about $5,700.

For the gift giver who is slightly less enamored by his would-be Valentine, tennis bracelets start at $199.

For that price, Hudson offers heart-shaped rings and necklace charms containing 1/4 carat of diamonds. For a slightly larger expenditure of $299, bracelets and rings can be purchased containing up to 1/2 carat of diamonds. Jewelry containing one carat of diamonds runs in the $499 range.

More moderately priced merchandise is also available.

For the most extravagant gift giver at all, PREVGRIM recommends a valentine-red convertible Corvette. Weber Granite City Chevrolet/Geo, located at Highway 3 and West Pontoon Road, has them fully-loaded for about $45,000.

Denise Harper, a receptionist at Weber Granite City, told PREVGRIM a green convertible Corvette would also be very persuasive.

Finally, to ensure that the gift is given at just the right time, Kavanelli's Restaurant in the American Village Shopping Center is offering Valentine's specials that include New York strip steak, pasta-con-braccio and broiled chicken.

Shirley K Floral Designs, 2701 Pontoon Road, is offering a Valentine package that includes a dozen long-stem red roses, a gift certificate from Ravanelli's and a limousine ride provided by Deluxe Limousine Service. Options in the package include a teddy bear, a heart-shaped box of candy, and sparkling juice and goblet glasses.

Three words of Valentine knowledge for the women who think PREVGRIM should devote equal space in advice on gifts for men:

"We don't care" (whether we receive a gift).

Gifts from Jan's can be "wrapped" inside an inflated balloon.

Denise Harper said this Valentine-red Corvette convertible could be a very persuasive gift.

This tennis bracelet, containing 4.3 carats of diamonds, would please most women.

Colleges forced to absorb veterans' unreimbursed fees

SPRINGFIELD — Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Lewis and Clark Community College will again have to absorb the costs of unreimbursed tuition and fees for veterans.

The veterans scholarship program, approved by lawmakers and distributed through the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, has $12 million, but that is expected to pay for less than half the claims from community colleges and public universities, Commission State Relations Director Randy Erford said.

The cost to individual institutions is projected to total about $25 million, Erford said. Unless the commission gets a supplemental appropriation this spring, which appears unlikely, colleges and universities will have to pick up all of the cost for the veterans for spring semester.

The shortfall will have no impact on the veterans since tuition and certain fees are waived if they meet the legal requirements.

The Legislature has underfunded the program for several years, but this year's appropriation has the biggest gap ever. Last year $12 million was also appropriated with claims of about $18 million, Erford said.

SIUE is expected face a shortfall of about $350,000 for 532 veterans this school year, said Marian Smithson, director of financial aid.

The university will have to make reallocations in the rest of its budget to absorb the loss, she said.

"I'm a little perplexed about a program that continues to go on and the state will only pick up 50 percent of the bill," she said.

LCCC has 150 veterans and may have to pick up about $50,000 for this school year, said Pete Basola, dean of enrollment resources and community education.

However, he said, because of the previous shortfalls, college budget planners made allowances this school year.

Erford said that Belleville Area Community College was the most hard hit by the shortfall this year because of the number of veterans from nearby Scott Air Force Base.

Living Proof to appear here

Living Proof, a gospel group, will be appearing at 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 26, at the Faith General Baptist Church, 664 Ashland Ave., Mitchell.

The Rev. Bo Schultz, Faith General pastor, invites everyone to attend.

Spreading joy to others — Seven-year-old Shawn Nicol, left, of Granite City presents Janet Smith, director of 5-Doctors and Hospice at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Granite City, with toys from his toy chest. A former pediatric patient, Nicol said he donated some of his toys to patients to enjoy during their hospital stay.

Free home weatherization being offered

Applications for free home weatherization are currently being accepted by the "40" Club, a not-for-profit organization based in Collinsville.

The weatherization program is funded through grants from the Illinois Energy Assistance Foundation.

The weatherization program is designed to aid low- to moderate-income families.

It provides such things as insulation, weatherstripping, caulking and other home repairs that will help make a home more energy efficient.

The 40 Club takes applications, determines eligibility and provides for the work to be done.

Families interested in receiving an application form may contact their local Illinois Power Co. office or Bud Graham of the 40 Club at 667-2608.

Political candidates embracing crime issue

Phelan is latest to unveil plan

SPRINGFIELD — Getting tough on crime is gaining momentum as the favored issue of the election season. Democratic gubernatorial candidate Richard Phelan unveiled a measure to lock up some violent criminals for longer terms, but critics question how to pay for the higher costs.

Sen. Penny Severns, D-Decatur, Phelan's running mate for lieutenant governor in the March 13 primary, introduced legislation Wednesday that would keep an estimated 1,500 prisoners behind bars for longer terms starting in five years at an annual cost of about $23 million.

Phelan's truth in sentencing law would require criminals convicted of first-degree murder, rape or aggravated battery with a weapon to serve 85 percent of their sentences before being considered for parole.

Rep. Jay Hoffman, also up for re-election this year, announced a package of anti-crime measures Tuesday aimed at juvenile offenders, parole guidelines and lengthy sentences. Phelan said his reform is needed because crime affects all of society, not just victims.

"The violence on our streets undermines our educational system," Phelan said.

"Gun violence fills our emergency rooms, bleeding our very health-care system. The threat of violence goes to the heart of the quality of our life. Felons now automatically receive 50 percent off of their sentences for good conduct and are eligible for credit for participating in educational or drug abuse programs and prison-related industries."

Phelan said the increased costs of housing criminals longer would be offset by moving less-violent criminals to boot camp-style facilities.

"If we can move some of the people who are serving time for nonviolent offenses dealing only with drugs or alcohol and treat them in a different setting, I think we can save a lot of money," Phelan said.

But Department of Corrections spokesman Nic Howell said the state has built more prisons, been tougher on crime and has tripled the prison population in the past 15 years and the problem hasn't gone away.

"What have we got to show for it?" he asked.

Howell likened the Phelan-Severns plan to a similar bill, sponsored by Rep. Rod Blagojevich of Chicago, that would require repeat violent felons to serve 85 percent of their prison sentences. If passed, the law would require $375.3 million in new prisons and an additional $20 million a year in operating costs beginning in five years.

He said Phelan's cost estimate of $23 million was incorrectly based on a figure drawn from Blagojevich's plan and doesn't account for added capital expenses.

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine, who was on hand to help unveil Hoffman's proposal, said he supports Phelan's legislation.

"Something must be done about increasing punishment and decreasing the number of repeat offenders," he said. "The way to do that is to make criminal careers into prison careers. If it takes more prison space, then build it."

Shimkus spreads word on tax delays

A change in state law will let more elderly homeowners delay property tax payments, and Madison County Treasurer John Shimkus is going on the road to let people know.

The law allows homeowners 65 or older and who earn no more than $25,000 a year to delay property tax payments until they die or the property is sold. At that time, accumulated taxes must be paid at 6 percent interest.

Shimkus is planning a series of workshops around the county to explain the program.

Meetings are scheduled for:
New Douglas Community Center at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.
Venice Senior Center at noon Tuesday.

Maryville Nutrition Site at 10:45 a.m. Thursday.
Leech Township Building on Illinois Route 160 at Niggle Road at 7 p.m. Feb. 15.

Until this year, the program was only available to elderly homeowners with incomes of no more than $11,000 a year.

Shimkus said the change has resulted in a fivefold increase in the number of participants in Madison County.

Last year, five people participated. So far this year, there are 25, he said.

The deadline for signing up with the Treasurer's Office is March 1.

Participants must turn 65 by June 1 and have lived in their property for at least three years. In addition, they must own the property and have no delinquent property taxes.

"Mr. Mayor, aldermen, I'm glad you feel that way because that's what's being done," Williams said. "I brought those pictures to show you why those people were cited."

After they're your friends, your brothers or sisters, your cousins or whatever, don't come crying to me. Kinko's or no talks everyone with trash like that is going to be cited. That's the way I do business."

Williams said all the offenders in the photographs were issued warning citations giving them 10 days to clean up.

He said if the problem remains after the 10-day period the police department will be instructed to issue misdemeanor citations.

Cable

Williams said the consortium would probably need similar help in wading through the complex laws and regulations governing cable companies.

Municipal leaders have yet to approve intergovernmental agreements that would enable the consortium to begin negotiations.

Municipalities and areas that have expressed interest in participating include parts of unincorporated Madison County, Collinsville, Highland, Madison, Venice, Granite City, Maryville, Alhambra, Worden, New Douglas, Pontoon Beach and St. Jacob, all served by Crown Cable.

Municipalities served by TCI Cable and showing interest in participating include Godfrey, Roxana, Bethalto, South Roxana, Alton, Wood River, East Alton and Hartford, plus some Madison County unincorporated areas.

Cable companies Madison County Communications, Triax Cable and Macoupin County Cablevision also serve some customers in the county.

At least one cable television operator is bidding, the proposal for municipalities to cooperate in negotiations.

The plan appears to have been developed by and would be a windfall for lawyers and consultants," Bill Ludwig, area manager of TCI of Illinois Inc., said in a letter to officials attending the meeting Tuesday

Fraturdays, in Pascual Hall, on the ground floor of the Council Center from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

STEMMS helps group members maintain emotional stability and achieve serenity, sobriety and live more productive lives.

Services are held on the second floor of the SEMC building. Anonymous/Narcotics Anonymous model, it is a psycheducational support group facilitated by peers with two professional staff present at each meeting. It is not a substitute for medication, therapy or AA/NA meetings.

Each meeting has a specific agenda, as well as time for open discussion. Materials from AA will be used along with speakers from the community and video tapes.

"These meetings provide a caring and supportive environment for 'dual diagnoses' clients and there are no dues or fees," said group facilitator Barbara Gaddo, MA and case manager in Mental Health Services at SEMC.

We encourage participation of both inpatient and outpatient clients to facilitate their dual recovery from chemical dependency and mental illness," Gaddo said.

No reservations or appointments are needed to attend the group meetings.

"If you have any questions, call Gaddo at 798-3894, or Mike Collegan of Mental Health Services at 877-4420."

For Social Security benefits, retirees must actually retire

By Bill Hunt
Social Security Administration

Q. I own and operate a construction business with my three sons.

I am president of the corporation and make the majority of the big management decisions for the company. I've been drawing a salary of about $60,000 a year.

In March, I will be 65 years old, and I want my Social Security to start. It was my understanding that only my wages would count against the $11,160 Social Security earnings limit.

So, on the advice of my CPA, I reduced my salary to exactly $11,160 and am increasing the amount of dividends I take from the company. When I applied for my Social Security, they turned down my application. They said my dividends will count against the limits.

I showed the Social Security representative in Social Security's own literature that dividends do not count, but he said they were making an exception for me. Can they do that?

A. Many corporate officers control the amount of wages they report to the government. Thus, some incorrectly assume they don't really have to retire to get their Social Security benefits.

They continue to do the same job, but take income from the business in the form of payments to other family members, dividends, excess rents, interest, loan repayments, or other forms of remuneration, instead of reporting earnings. You can't do that.

If you receive income in any form from your business, and you are working in that business, Social Security and the IRS consider you to be receiving earnings. And, if you apply for benefits, Social Security must ensure that the services you perform in your business are reflected in the earnings you report.

A decline in your reported earnings should be the result of a decrease in your responsibilities in the business, or a decrease in your work activity, or other business-related factors, not just a manipulation of the form of your compensation. Therefore, to collect all of your Social Security benefits, you may have to significantly reduce your participation in your business.

Social Security will compare the responsibilities, hours of work, degree of management control and other duties you had before your "retirement" to your duties afterwards.

You will be asked about changes in other types of remuneration, such as rents, dividends and payments to other family members. You may be asked to provide copies of personal and/or corporate tax returns, corporate meeting minutes and other business documents. Social Security may also contact your clients, customers and suppliers to verify your allegations.

The people at your local Social Security office will help you gather the information and evidence you'll need to support your application for benefits, but ultimately, the burden of proving that you are retired is on you. If necessary, Social Security will determine the true value of your services, and that amount will be used in applying the earnings limits.

Belleville back in Mon-Clair League picture

In 1988, I got so hot over something I had written, I tore it up and threw it away.

The Mon-Clair Baseball League, which is considered by baseball officials of higher rank than me to be the best men's league in the Midwest, was entering a season without a Belleville entry.

I FUMED. No men's baseball in Belleville was something I had never experienced. For a baseball loyalist, that's like a major league ball without Harry Carey or the Cardinals without Clydesdales.

At a meeting of the Mon-Clair League the other night in Millstadt, though, Lyle Reuss of Belleville stepped forward, made a bid to enter a team in the league and now has my curiosity as to the caliber of the new team.

Why worry? The answer is that Reuss successfully outbid three other hopefuls — the Brooklyn Robins, who previously had played in the Mon-Clair; the St. Louis Wildcats, who had some exhibition experience in recent seasons against Mon-Clair teams; and a Bethalto team which had been together the past four years but had not opposed Mon-Clair teams.

"There's always been interest for a Belleville team, and I believe we can field a competitive team," said the 55-year-old Reuss, who is not new to baseball.

A GRADUATE of Marissa High, Lyle not only played baseball during his days at SIU-Carbondale, but also was an infielder with Lezbourg and then Tilden in the County League. More importantly, from an organizational standpoint, he has 15 years of experience as a varsity coach at Cahokia High School, five years with the Cahokia American Legion and five years as the head coach at St. Louis University.

When it comes to starting a program, he has experience in the form of American Legion ball, which he helped start in Cahokia.

"He's been around baseball for a long time, and if Belleville were to come back into this league, Lyle's the type of person we'd want as the manager," Mon-Clair President Mel Patton said.

At St. Louis U., Reuss had two players — John Duncan of Belleville and Jim Woods of Dupu — who achieved All-American recognition.

"WE ARE GOING to have to have a blend of younger players with a few veterans," Reuss said of the team, which opens its regular season on Mother's Day.

At present, the younger players will include prospects like Reuss' son Ryan, a sophomore outfielder at the Belleville Area College. The coach will be assisted by Bill Houck and Gary Bernard. Each is interested in speaking with prospective players.

A highly-recognized auto sales director, Reuss is with George Weber Chevrolet in Columbia, the team's major sponsor. Lyle can be reached at home at 233-6079 or at work at 281-5111.

He also noted that interested prospects could meet him at the next Mon-Clair meeting at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 28 at the West End Tavern in Millstadt, where the 1994 schedule is expected to be finalized.

How will Belleville do in '94? It's a question I would have enjoyed asking each season since '88.

Warriors whip Lancers, win regional

Granite City matmen dominate East in postseason dual, 43-11

The Granite City wrestling team tightened its powerful grip over the rest of the area's teams Tuesday night by capturing the regional dual-meet title with a 43-11 victory over Belleville East in Memorial Gymnasium.

The Warriors won the first seven matches and then finished off the Lancers to improve to 24-1 on the season. Granite City got pins from 125-pounder T.J. Slay and 189-pounder John Sellers and two other victories by technical fall.

The Warriors, who defeated the Lancers 41-15 in a Southwest Conference match earlier this year, made it look even more convincing Tuesday.

"ALL IN ALL, I was pleased with our performance," Granite City coach Mike Garland said. "I didn't think that would be the outcome. (But) we'll take them any way we can get them."

The match began with a 152-pound bout between Granite City's Joe Scott and Dave Butz after a draw to determine which weight class would be first. Mosby's steady play drives home a point

By David Wilhelm
Staff writer

Collinsville High basketball coach Bob Bone considered Granite City's Laren Mosby the top point guard in the Southwest Conference before the season even began. And Mosby has done nothing to diminish Bone's lofty opinion of him.

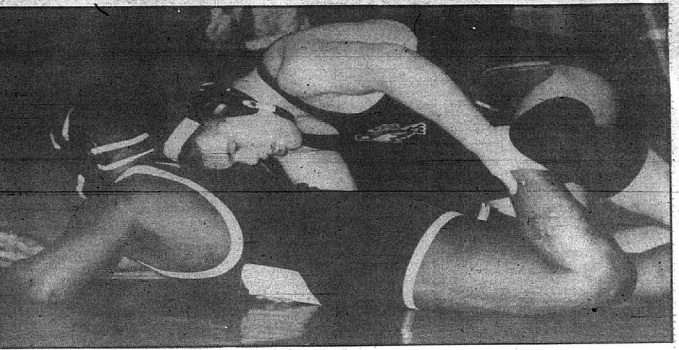

Mosby, a 5-foot-8 senior, is averaging 18.2 points and 2.8 steals per game. He scored 33 points in Granite City's stunning 71-64 victory last Saturday over visiting O'Fallon.

"EARLY IN THE year, we weren't concerned with him as a three-point shooter," said Bone. "Now he's shooting the three, which makes you step out a couple of steps further to guard him. And when you step back a little further, that makes it easier for him to go around you."

"He has the ability, too, to penetrate and jump up over the top of you and make it shot. Mosby will be in Collinsville's Fletcher Gym on Friday at 8 p.m., when Granite City (11-10 overall, 4-3 in the SWC) will try to snap the Kahoks' 12-game winning streak which has improved their record to 15-5 overall and 6-1 in the league."

The Warriors have been giant-killers this season thanks in large part to the play of Mosby. Not only did they defeat O'Fallon, but they also own victories over Civic Memorial and East St. Louis.

"You've got to know exactly where people are and try not to let Mosby penetrate much and kill you with a 3-point night like he did against O'Fallon," Bone said. "You know he's going to get some (points), but you just hope you can control him a little bit."

Warriors, Kahoks to put winning streaks on line

By David Wilhelm

The Granite City Warriors are no longer punching bags for Southwestern Conference basketball teams hoping to beef up their records.

No, indeed. The Warriors are walking with some swagger these days. They enter Friday's 8 p.m. game at Collinsville with a three-game winning streak and fresh off last Saturday's attention-grabbing 71-64 upset victory over O'Fallon — the No. 4 seed in the Collinsville Sectional.

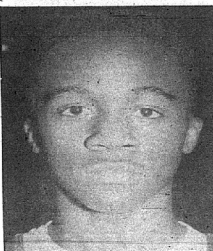

CAN ANYONE COUL the suddenly hot Warriors? Their coach, John Van Buskirk, says the Kahoks are a good candidate. Collinsville, the No. 1 seed in the sectional, has tormented Granite City in recent seasons, and it owns a 12-game winning streak that has run its overall record to 15-5.

"They're the best team in the area," said Van Buskirk. "They have the consensus of 16 coaches. We definitely have our hands full."

The Warriors (11-10 overall, 4-3 in the SWC) also own surprising triumphs over No. 3 sectional seed Civic Memorial (62-40 in two overtime) and East St. Louis (51-50). Yet they're seeded just 11th in the sectional.

"We're playing good basketball," said Van Buskirk, in his second season. "You have to be proud of the effort we're putting forth. We've worked hard. But we've played some very good games to beat good teams. We'll have to do the same to beat Collinsville. We have to have a team effort from all the guys."

THE KAHOKS ARE closing in on another SWC title. Last Friday's thrilling 59-58 victory at Belleville West improved their league record to 6-1. But that's in the past, and the Warriors (See CAGERS, Page 4B)

THUS FAR, that's what the Kahoks have been able to do. Mosby scored just eight points against them in the consolation championship of the Collinsville-Schnucks Holiday Classic on Dec. 30. CHS won the game 59-37.

Posting up Warrior center overcomes odds, excels under basket

"Good things come in small packages."

Just ask Rob Wallace. A senior at Granite City High School, Wallace only stands 6-foot-1, but he's established himself as a bonafide center on the Warrior basketball team.

His hustle and determination alone have overshadowed what some might consider to be mediocre numbers for a pivot man. But Wallace, who's averaging five points and seven rebounds a game, has become an emotional leader for an overachieving basketball team. The Warriors, who defeated O'Fallon 71-64 last Saturday, are currently 11-10.

"I DON'T KNOW where this team would be without Rob," Granite City coach John Van Buskirk said. "He's small for a center, but he's not afraid to mix it up inside. And most of the people he's gone up against have been bigger than him."

"He's been extremely effective. Whether it's rebounding, playing defense, diving after loose balls or scoring, Rob does it all."

Wallace displayed these talents against O'Fallon. He suffered a gash over his right eye diving after a loose ball. But following a brief trip to the trainer's room, he returned and helped the Warriors pull off the upset.

"Just laying there on the trainer's table got me to thinking," Wallace said. "These guys were seeded fourth in the (Collinsville) sectional and they should be blowing us out. But we were right in the game with them."

"That effort by our team pushed me back into the game. I wanted to win so bad, I almost jumped off the table. I wanted to beat O'Fallon and we did."

WALLACE HAD FOUR points against O'Fallon, including a putback at the buzzer in the first half. Van Buskirk was amazed by Wallace's quick return.

Stretch run approaching for Jr. Blues

By Grant Peters
Staff writer

Crunch time is approaching in the North American Junior Hockey League, and Craig Heggs' St. Louis Junior Blues are hurting.

Veteran forward Geoff Neidenbach is out until at least the playoffs with a bulging disc in his back, rookie forward Kris Margherio (John Burroughs) has missed three games because of a shoulder injury and steady veteran defenseman Kris Riedy has missed three games because of a leg injury.

"THIS IS always something that seems to happen at the end of the season," Heggs said. "Bad luck down the stretch has hurt us for the last three years."

But despite the adversity, the Junior Blues are hanging tough at 18-10-2 heading into this weekend's doubleheader with the Down River (Mich.) Blades at Affton Ice Rink Saturday's faceoff is set for 2 p.m., while the two teams will square off again at 10:15 a.m. Sunday.

Heggs' club is currently in second place and chasing Cleveland for first place in the NAJHL race. The Wayne Chiefs are also right in the thick of the battle.

"It's going to come down to the wire again," Heggs said. "I'll be real close again, like it usually is."

Craig Herweck leads the Junior Blues in scoring with 25 goals and 13 assists for 38 points in 30 games. Parkway West star Jeff Medolla has come on as of late and has 32 points (19 goals, 14 assists) in just 24 games. Neidenbach and Matt Jost (CBO) each have 29 points.

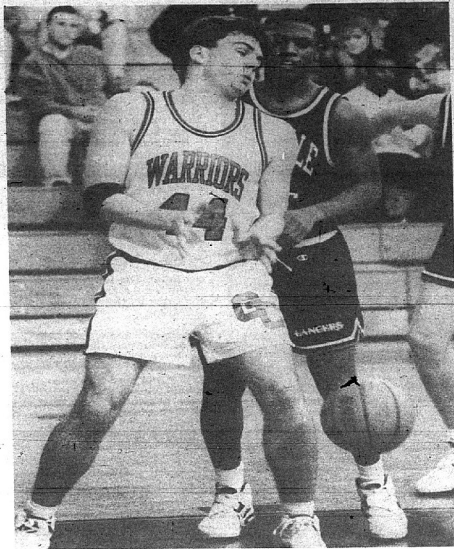

"We've only got two guys (Herweck and Medolla) in the league's top 20 in scoring, but that's the way it always is with us," Heggs said. "We win and lose as a team, and many times a lot of different guys lead us on different nights."

"We figure if we keep the other team off the scoreboard and work hard to get our three or so goals a game, we'll be all right."

THAT'S BECAUSE Heggs has the luxury of having two top-notch goalenders in Aaron Vickar (Parkway Central) and Mike Verplancke (CBO), both of whom are currently playing very well.

Another regular in the lineup is Chris Goclan, a forward from Granite City.

"We are hurting pretty bad right now with the injuries, but hopefully we'll have everybody back soon," Heggs said. "These last six games are crucial, and we need everybody in the lineup."

Rob Wallace returned from an injury Saturday night to help lead the Warriors past O'Fallon.

Wallace

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "You can't keep this guy out of the lineup. He's like a bull in a china shop. He'll sacrifice his body for the good of the team. And the guys seem to feed off his energy. He always gives us 110 percent every time he plays."

Wallace gets that energy from his family. His father (Tim), his uncles and his half-brother — Joe Wallace, who starred at Oklahoma State University and recently signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals have laid the foundation. Wallace is following in their footsteps.

"But I'm not as talented as those guys," he said. "So I have to work that much harder to be effective. It's been frustrating at times, especially when I'm compared to Joe. He's such a tremendous player, there's no way I'll ever duplicate what he's done."

"But I consider it a personal challenge. That's why I work myself to death on the floor. I may not be as gifted as the rest of the men in my family, but I haven't embarrassed myself, either. I feel I can take my place among them as a good athlete."

He models himself after Donnie Dobbs of St. Louis University and Charles Barkley of the Phoenix Suns.

"Those guys are my idols," Wallace said. "They're always pitted against people bigger than them. But they always hold their own. They won't yield an inch. I've taken a similar attitude in game situations."

"I was always the tallest kid in my class since I stopped growing my freshman year, so I was bred to play in the middle. But most of the guys I go up against are bigger than me. But I grade myself on hustle, defense and boxing out. If my opponent doesn't dominate the game, I've done my job."

But Wallace, who has been playing basketball since the fourth grade, realizes this might be the final log of his career.

"It's crossed my mind on several occasions," he said. "It's a scary thought not going to practice anymore or playing in front of the home crowds on Friday night, but it could happen. I'm not going to give up that easily, though."

Wherever I go to school next year the plans on attending Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. I plan on walking on. I love basketball very much, whether I'm playing it or watching it. That's why I've devoted myself to the game like I have. My career might be over after this season, but I'm going out on a strong note and it's going to bring me a lifetime of satisfaction."

Mosby

Mosby came back with a 19-point game against the Kahoks on Jan. 7. But the Warriors lost that game, too, 58-48. So in two games against Collinsville, Mosby is averaging 13½ points.

Bone's sure Mosby, a three-year starter, will be a fine addition to some college program. "I think he can probably play low-Division I or Division II," said Bone. "I don't know if he can play at a high Division I program, simply because of his size. But I've seen worse players make it at a higher level. So much depends on what a team needs."

"I said this a long time ago: I thought he was the best guard on the east side of the river. He's just gotten better."

Granite City 125-pounder Keyin Feigenbutz stays on top of things against Belleville East's Charles Stacy.

•Matmen

from 152 to 275 and then from 193 to 145. Scott began the match by defeating Butz 7-2, and Granite City raced to a 24-0 lead. Belleville East's Charles Stacy broke the shutout with a 9-6 win over Kevin Feigenbutz at 125 pounds.

Belleville East won three of the last five matches, but Granite City's eight-match run was too much to overcome.

"Our kids weren't up for it and it showed," Belleville East coach Norm Dahm said. "The emotion wasn't there. (The Warriors) were ready to go. They came out ready to wrestle."

"We've got a young team. Hopefully, in the future we'll be able to challenge Granite City. This was no challenge. Granite City won its third straight regional title and 28th overall. The Warriors advanced to sectional competition and will face regional winners from Wood River, Carbondale and Springfield Lanphier in a four-team meet Feb. 22 at Granite City.

The sectional winner will move on to the state tournament, set for Feb. 26 at Illinois State University in Normal. The Warriors advanced to state as a team two years ago and came within one match of making a repeat trip last year.

But Springfield ended those hopes with a 27-24 victory against Granite City in the sectional title match. Most of the wrestlers from that team returned this year, and the Warriors want to make sure history doesn't repeat itself.

"We want to get back into the same situation we were in last year," Garland said. "Hopefully, it will be a different outcome. We had a real young team and youth caught up with us. We'd like to get back to state."

The Warriors' chances to do so look good. Two years ago, Granite City dominated regional competition by qualifying 12 wrestlers for the sectional and then winning the regional dual-team title. The Warriors repeated that feat this week.

Granite City produced six individual champions in Saturday's O'Fallon Regional, and five of them were victorious Tuesday: Slay, Sellier, 119-pounder Tim Fulkerson; 171-pounder Tony Buchek; and 275-pounder Chris Janek.

Brian Schooley, Granite City's 135-pound junior who won the regional title Saturday, lost 9-3 to Marcus Myers of Belleville East. Myers is 36-1 and shooting for his first state tournament appearance, but Schooley held his own.

"We were happy with him even though he lost," Garland said. "He wrestled hard for six minutes."

Slay posted the quick pin of the night by putting away Matt Eiskant in 50 seconds. Slay and Granite City's two other standout lightweight wrestlers, Fulkerson and Chris Hogan, did not take the mat until halfway through the match because of the new regional format.

"It's good to have Fulkerson, Hogan and Slay at the end," Garland said. "That's three tough kids to finish up with."

After Fulkerson defeated Kevin Trapp 5-1, Feigenbutz battled Stacy in a tight match before losing 9-6. Feigenbutz, a sophomore, has filled in for Ernie Miller, the only senior on the team. Miller is ill but could return in time for the dual-team sectional meet.

Feigenbutz, who moved up from the JV team, placed second at regional competition Saturday. His accomplishment was yet another example of Granite City's strong program.

The Warriors will take a dozen wrestlers into this weekend's Springfield

U.S. Olympic Festival kicks off with celebration in St. Louis

By Steve Porter
Staff writer

The air was filled with balloons, music and perhaps a little magic Saturday at the St. Louis Galleria.

St. Louis' Gateway to the Gold, namely the 1994 U.S. Olympic Festival, had its official coming-out party.

MARY LOU REITON and Evander Holyfield — mug and a pug, so to speak, showed up to sign autographs, press the flesh and do selected interviews.

Pablo Morales, St. Louisan Wendy Lian Williams and weightlifter Mark Henry trotted out later. The festivities continued Sunday with Brett Hull cast as the featured attraction.

TICKETS FOR THE JULY 1-10 event went on sale, prompting a small crowd of festival president Mike Dyer.

"I'm not sure how many tickets we sold, but I heard some people were out here at the Galleria at 6:30 this morning to buy them," Dyer said.

If Dyer has his way, ticket sales will swell to 500,000 by Festival's end. The event is expected to pump more than $75 million into the St. Louis and Southwestern Illinois economy, mainly because of ticket sales.

Ticket prices range from $4 to $15 for the 37 events at 25 sites, including Alton, SIUE and Carlyle. Fans can purchase an all-events pass for $250, but they're being sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

"WE ONLY HAVE about 4,000 of them," he added.

So what's hot?

"We expect the swimming and diving at St. Peters (Mo.) Rec Plex to be sold out because there's limited seating," Dyer said. "Gymnastics and figure skating also will draw well."

So should basketball and hockey, since both will be played at The Arena.

Track and field will be situated on SIUE's new facility from July 8-10. Wrestling is penciled in for the SIUE campus. Judo will be held at the University of Missouri on July 2-6. Cycling trials are tentatively set to run July 7 on the Great River Road. Dried, Feb. 24 at Carlyle Lake.

Present another challenge.

"We'll have to play well," said Collinsville coach Bob Bone, whose team has defeated Granite City twice this season.

"They're playing the best they've played all year. As a result, they'll come in here with a lot of confidence."

The Kahoks also have an 8 p.m. game Saturday at Quincy. The Blue Devils (15-4) are the 14th-ranked Class AA team in Illinois.

Granite City's Larren Mosby is one of the top players in the conference and is undoubtedly its best point guard. Mosby, a flashy, 5-foot-9 senior, is averaging 18.2 points per game, and he's the principal reason the Warriors have improved dramatically on last season's uninspiring 7-17 record. He scored 33 points against O'Fallon.

"MOSEBY'S GOTTEN a lot better than he was earlier in the year," Bone said. "He's shooting the ball a lot better; he's got a lot more range now."

Granite City also has a dangerous player in senior sharpshooter Jason Black, who's averaging nearly 16 points per game. His other starters are seniors Chris Kult, Ramirez Wallace and Rob Wallace.

"Right now, they're playing extremely well," said Bone. "They saw their game with O'Fallon on Saturday night, and they pretty much controlled the game. It wasn't like something they just won at the end and got lucky."

"O'Fallon tied it up early in the fourth quarter, but other than that Granite City pretty much was ahead the whole time and really played well — and O'Fallon's got an awfully good ballclub."

The Kult kid hit some threes and played a lot better. They're starting Ramirez Wallace now, and he played well. They're getting better balance than what they were getting earlier in the year. As a result, that just makes them that much harder to guard."

But as usual, the Warriors will have a major chore in containing 6-8 center Cory Garcia. Garcia and forward John Curry combined for 45 points Jan. 7 in the Kahoks' 58-48 win over the Warriors.

"We definitely have our hands full," Van Buskirk said. "Garcia just creates a lot of problems for everybody. He makes the other players better."

The Kahoks are one of the area's top defensive teams, surrendering an average of just 48.8 points per game. But Bone said there's room for improvement.

"I thought our defense the last couple of weeks hasn't been as strong," Bone said. "We're taking a lot more chances than we were before."

BAC Minority Transfer Center helps minorities

Stephanie Salinas of Belleville thought her college education was over when she prepared to graduate from Belleville Area College in 1991.

After discussing her plans with BAC's Minority Transfer Center Director Vivian Lucas-Gallman, Salinas discovered there might be other options.

"Vivian encouraged me to apply to the University of Illinois," she said. "I had planned to get a job and go to work."

On a recent visit to Belleville, Salinas, 21, discussed how her life has changed.

"I grew up in Turkey and attended DODDS (Department of Defense Dependents Schools) high school in Japan. My father was in the military, and we moved to Belleville when I was a senior in high school," she said.

After graduation and the birth of her son, she enrolled in night classes at BAC. After the first year, she attended classes during the day and graduated in 1991.

"I wanted to continue my education, but I told Vivian I couldn't see any way that I could," said Salinas.

She received a National Hispanic Scholarship while attending BAC.

"Vivian continued to encourage me. When I got accepted at U of I, Vivian drove me to the financial aid office (Educational Opportunity Center) in Belleville to explore scholarships and assistance. She also talked to my parents. She was there for me."

Salinas said she wouldn't be completing a degree in elementary education at the U of I if she hadn't started at BAC and received assistance from Gallman and the Minority Transfer Program.

She said her parents have taken classes at BAC. Her father, Lt. Col. Gilberto Salinas Jr., retired from the United States Air Force after 28 years of service and recently completed the business administration program. He plans to open his own business.

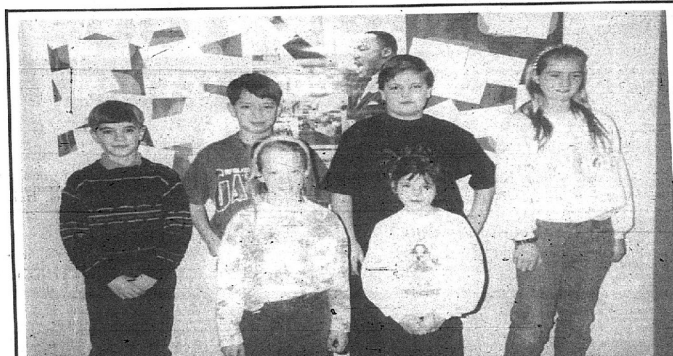

Her mother, Estella, is enrolled in the early childhood program.

"If I hadn't started at BAC, there was no way I could have made it," she said. "You save yourself and parents a lot of money. I can say I miss BAC and being at home with my family, but I know what I want to do. I plan to teach in the DODDS system, hopefully in Japan."

Six advance to state level — The creative works of six Parkview School students will be going to the Illinois PTA judging of Reflections. The Reflections program encourages students to create original works in the Visual Arts, Photography, Literature and Music. The students' works were judged by District 29 PTA in order to qualify for state judging. From left in the front row are Perri Gitchio, Photography and Jenna Caschetta, Literature. Back row from left are Anthony White, Literature; Timothy Kosuge, Literature; Larry Monroe, Visual Arts and Kellie Evans, Music.

Former Brooklyn youth makes it big in Hollywood

By Mike Viola
Staff writer

When he was five-years-old, Cliff Shegog's teacher made him get up in front of a bunch of high school students and perform the role of Old King Cole.

It was the first performance for Shegog, who now has a steady flow of work in Hollywood. He still looks on those early, simple performances with delight.

"I come from a really religious family and my mom was always putting on Christmas and church plays so I was automatically in them," said Shegog in a telephone interview last week from Hollywood.

On Feb. 4, Shegog's latest film, "Street Wars," hit theaters in the St. Louis area. Family and friends from throughout the Metro East are getting a chance to see how far the little boy who played Old King Cole has progressed in show business.

Shegog spent his childhood moving around to numerous cities in the Metro East. He was born in Brooklyn, but later lived in Lebanon, East St. Louis and Nashville. During his high school years, he attended Lebanon High School, East St. Louis Lincoln and Nashville Christian Institute.

Shegog showed no significant interest in becoming an actor when he went to Colorado State University on a basketball scholarship. After college, he spent one year touring with the Harlem Globetrotters.

After the Globetrotter stint, Shegog returned to Colorado State to pursue a masters degree in Education. That's when fate stepped in. Warner Brothers had decided to film their basketball based movie, "One on One," at Colorado State. Since he was a former player at the university, Shegog was asked by the producer to audition.

Shegog was cast in a small role which had only a few lines, but that set in motion a career in show business.

"It was just a great experience and it allowed me to make some connections," Shegog said. After finishing his school work, Shegog went to California to take acting classes. He then returned to Colorado State and performed in a variety of school plays.

Shegog decided to go to New York and seek work as a stage actor, but got sidetracked in St. Louis. He ended up becoming an actor with the City Players, St. Louis Black Repertory and on the stages at Southern Illinois University.

Shegog never made it to New York. After his stage career in St. Louis, he decided to head back to Los Angeles. There he signed with an agent and the auditions began.

Cliff Shegog

Over the past several years, Shegog was able to find work in several films including "Escape from New York," "Against All Odds," "True Identity" and "Star Trek VI." He also had roles in several television shows.

"Street Wars" marks another milestone for Shegog's career. No longer a member of the ensemble, Shegog receives top billing along with the other principle actors in the movie.

In addition to acting, Shegog has started writing his own scripts hoping someday to be able to make his own films. He also continues to go on auditions in order to try and land that next role.

"I'm trying to get some projects together and we'll just see where they lead," Shegog said.

by Jamaa Fanaka. Fanaka is most known for his 1979 film "Penitentiary," a drama about a wrongly imprisoned man who boxes his way to freedom. "Penitentiary" spawned two sequels, "Penitentiary II" and "Penitentiary III."

In publicity received by Medallion Entertainment Corporation, "Street Wars" has received praise from several film publications.

"Daily Variety" said the following of "Street Wars":

"Fanaka's militant pic is one step beyond Spike Lee and John Singleton. Here, rage is channeled into action. Fanaka's young men are not confused, they know what needs to be done. The fanciful pic is highly stylized and surprisingly upbeat."

22-year-old is 2-time Grammy winner

(The following article is by Matthew Dietrich of Copley News Service.)

SPRINGFIELD — Five years ago, Alison Krauss was a 17-year-old student at the University of Illinois, studying and planning a career as a choir director.

Four albums and two Grammy Awards later, the 22-year-old Champaign native is a choir director of sorts, though her title is "producer" and her workplace is a Nashville recording studio, not a church.

"It's funny because being a choir director does a lot of the same things you would do working in a band," Krauss said during a break in the recording of her next album. "You pick all the songs and you arrange the songs and tell everybody when you like what they're playing. That's your job, to put it all together."

Krauss' bluegrass fiddling won her Grammys at ages 19 and 21.

Though she has packed a career's worth of achievements into her 22 years, Krauss hardly sees herself as a star. Instead, she remains fascinated at being able to make a living playing bluegrass music, and comes off in conversation like just another young adult from Champaign.

"I never thought I'd be doing this for a living," says Krauss, who left the University of Illinois while recording her second album, "Two Highways."

She wasn't leaving to pursue stardom, she says. "I was just missing too much school and I didn't want to get bad grades."

Krauss' penchant for understatement and frankness might be attributed in part to the unorthodox path she took from 8-year-old fiddle prodigy to serious bluegrass musician as a teen.

Unlike many child stars, Krauss was not raised by parents who pushed her into performing with stardom as the goal. Instead, she says, her parents encouraged her and her brother Victor (now bassist with country star Shelby Lynne) to get involved in many different arts and sports activities.

"They basically wanted us to experience everything," Krauss says.

"One thing that we did was take an instrument for five years. That was like a requirement that we didn't realize was a requirement until later," Krauss says.

Victor already was playing the piano, and 5-year-old Alison didn't have the wind power needed to play a wind instrument, so she settled on violin.

She started off with classical pieces, but really settled into the instrument when she discovered fiddle music three years later.

'Street Wars' is 'offbeat gangster fantasy-drama'

"Street Wars" is described by its producer as an "offbeat gangster fantasy-drama." It takes place in the wake of Los Angeles' 1992 civil unrest.

"Street Wars" tells the story of Sugarpop, a 17-year-old trying to make something out of his life in the high crime area of South Central Los Angeles.

Sugarpop is an aviation cadet at the elitist Exeter Military Academy and is headed toward a college education at West Point Military Academy.

His older brother, Frank, is the father of the crime scene of South Central Los Angeles. He is one of LA's most powerful and successful drug lords.

An attempt on Frank's life sets off a city-wide drug war. A second attempt on Frank's life is successful and Sugarpop takes charge of his brother's drug enterprise.

Sugarpop vows to avenge his brother's death and pledges to make the organization "legit" within two years.

With his aviation background, Sugarpop and his followers use ultra-tech to conduct a ghetto air force to fight their enemies.

Former Metro East resident Cliff Shegog plays the role of Humungus, a massive gang member who plays a key role in the drug war.

Festival to offer sampling of Missouri's fine wines

By Rob Staggengro
Staff writer

Wine lovers are expected to pack West Port Plaza's Indoor Mall from 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 12 and 13 for the eighth annual Missouri Wine Festival.

Wineries from across Missouri will be on hand to display their wares. The public is invited to sample and purchase wines made by some of the state's finest private wineries.

Representatives from eight Missouri wineries are expected to set up booths at the festival. Those wineries are the Augusta Winery, Blas Vineyards and Winery, Blumenhof Vineyards, Heinrichs Haus Vineyards and Winery, Hermannhof Winery, the Montelle Winery, the St. James Winery and the Stone Hill Winery.

Gourmet cheese also will be offered at the festival, and the St. Louis Bread Company will be on hand with freshly baked breads. The Waterloo German Band will provide music throughout the plaza. Commemorative WineFest goblets will be sold for a $5 donation for the Leukemia Society of America. Event organizers suggest patrons purchase a goblet to sample the various wines.

All eight participating wineries are award-winning, said a spokeswoman for West Port Plaza. For example, the St. James Winery is a past winner at the renowned San Diego National Wine Competition, and the winery's 1992 Vinolites wine won a gold medal at the San Francisco Fair that year.

The Blumenhof winery boasts that it has garnered the most awards in Missouri for varietal wines, and that it is the only Missouri winery to win a gold medal every year since 1988 in the Missouri Wine Competition. In all, Blumenhof has won more than 20 gold medals in various state and national wine competitions.

Let us publicize your event

For the many charitable and non-profit groups in our community, nothing is more important than that once-a-year bake sale, rummage sale, quilt drawing or benefit dance.

The Press-Record/Journal also thinks these special events are important: so important we want to put them — in living color — on the front page of our newspaper.

The newspaper is reserving a spot for a color photo on the front page of its Sunday edition for Cub Scout bake sales, PTA craft fairs, church bazaars and the many other little events with big significance that never seem to make it onto Page One.

There are some rules. The Page One program is only open to once-a-year special events held by charitable or non-profit groups. The program is designed to preview events, so groups need to request Page One placement 30 days in advance of the event. The Page One program photos will only run in the Sunday edition. In the case of conflicting events, the first request received will be honored.

Requests for the Page One program must be in writing and request forms are available at the Press-Record/Journal office, 1115 Delmar Ave., Granite City.
